CAME HERE WITH THREE DOLLARS

Richard W. Philips Moved to This County From South Carolina
When 17 Years Old.

AMASSED LARGE FORTUNE

Expired at His Home in Posey Township Yesterday Evening at 4:30 O'clock.

Richard W. Philips, a prominent farmer of Posey township, died at his home yesterday evening about 4:30 o'clock, of the ailments common to old age. He suffered a serious illness last fall from which it was thought for a time he would not recover, and never regained his health again all winter. In the spring
he grew better, but about a month ago began to get worse and gradually became weaker until the end came yesterday evening.

The deceased was in his seventieth
year and was born in South Carolina. He came to this county when a youth of seventeen years with three dollars in his pocket and no
friends and has amassed a comfortable fortune. He leaves his children over five hundred acres of land and a neat bank account. The deceased was a juror in the Bankert murder trial and always held out for the acquittal of the defendant. He was a veteran of the civil war.

The deceased is survived by a wife,
three sons, Charley, Eddie and Clinton and one daughter Ada who is now married. One daughter Adelle is dead.

The funeral services will be conducted from the Arlington M. E.
church tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. The remains will be buried in the Arlington East Hill cemetery.

"Good-bye Molly Brown" at the way" and will appear in the

LATE HARVEST EXPECTED

Wheat Cutting be Away Behind This Year.

Wheat cutting in Rush county will be unusually late this year. The cold weather has retarded the growth of this grain, and the Fourth of July will find wheat still waving proudly in the fields. In most of the sections of the county the wheat indicates a good yield. Farmers say it will be five weeks or more before thrashing
is done.

There will be more of a crop than hoped for early in the spring as some of the fields have come out nicely.

CONTRACT LET FOR THE MACADAM ROAD

Wilk & Martin Successful Bidders on Rush-Fayette County Line Road.

BELOW ENGINEER'S ESTIMATE

A joint session of the commissioners of Fayette and Rush counties
was held yesterday in the court house for the purpose of opening bids on the Macadam road from Glenwood to Orange, petitioned for by George Looney and others. The firm of Wilk & Martin of this city proved the successful bidders, and it will be specially gratifying to the taxpayers to learn that the accepted bid was far below the engineer's estimate of the cost. His figures for the building of the road were $11-553.50, while Wilkes' & Martin's bid is $9,971, a difference of 1,582 5/8,
or more than $500 on the mile.

This will prove encouraging to communities wanting macadam roads, the only in fact that will endure, as it places the cost far below what was expected. Conditions along this piece of road, however, may have been specially favorable.

PURCHASED HOME IN OLD VIRGINIA

Firm of Irvin and Thomas Grown Tired of Panama—Will Live
on Picturesque Estate.

IN BANKS OF THE YORK RIVER

The following article from the Connorsville News concerns a brother of Arthur B. Irvin of this city:

"The News is in receipt of a letter from Mrs. Herbert Thomas, formerly of Harrisburg, but who for the last few years has been in Panama, saying that the firm of Irvin & Thomas,
of which her husband is a partner,
has purchased a picturesque old estate on the York river in Virginia, and will soon move there. For several months Mr. Thomas' health has not been strong and Mr. and Mrs. Irvin have grown weary of the tropical atmosphere of the isthmus. It will be pleasing to the many friends of these people to learn that they are going to make their home henceforth in a more temperate climate.

Mrs. Thomas is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin. She and they are well known in this county."

FOURTH OF JULY IS A DAY OF TERROR

Movement Last Year For Safe and Sane Celebration Reduced
List of Wounded.

PARENTS ALWAYS DREAD IT

The one day in the year that all parents wish was over from one year to the next is due in about four weeks, the Fourth of July. Last year there was a general movement to prevent loss of life, arms, legs, eyes, fingers, hands and other parts of the human anatomy and as a result there was a big decrease. The restrictions were a mighty good thing for Young America and as time passes there will be saner and safer observances
of the Nation's birthday.

Here in Rushville there are certain restrictions, but no one knows what they are. They should be dragged from the dusty archives in the town board council chamber and given publicity, not for the sake of doing something, but for the sake of humanity.

INDOOR PICNIC AT SOCIAL CLUB

Fifty Girls of Industrial School Enjoyed Annual Outing—Was a Rare Treat.

WAS TO BE AT FAIR GROUNDS

But The Weather Man Interfered—Lunch Was Served on The Lawn.

Did they have a good time? It would be preposterous to say that those fifty young girls of the industrial school did not enjoy themselves at the indoor picnic held in the social club building yesterday afternoon. And one could never see their bright and happy faces and say that they were not getting the best to be had in life at that time at any rate. They romped and they played and they played and they romped and never once did they get tired, not even when the bell rang for the
"eats," did they want to stop.

The women of the industrial school had planned to give the children their annual outing as is their custom this year at the fair grounds. They had made elaborate arrangements for the occasion and the children have been looking forward to it eagerly for several weeks. To most of them it was the biggest event in their life and to have disappointed them would have been an injustice. Just at the last minute, as the women feared, the weather man interfered and said that there would be no picnic held at the fair ground that day. They had prepared the lunch and the children had anticipated the event so long that there was nothing to be done only to hold a picnic indoors. The members of the Social Club kindly consented to let them use the palors of the club house and there they all went yesterday afternoon.

The chairs and tables were all cleared away and the girls were given free swing. They played London, bridge, drop the handkerchief and many other games, which were interesting to the girls of their age, the teachers joining in with the merry throng, really enjoying seeing them
made happy as much as the children enjoyed the fun. They skipped about on the polished floors and the heavy Brussels carpets, inspecting all the pictures and occasionally one youngsters who had grown weary of the strenuous play would go off to the corner with a copy of "Puck" or
"Judge" and there enjoy the funny
pictures for a time only soon to return to the games. There was not a nook and corner in the building,
which was not shut off from them,
that they did not closely search.

And they did all stay inside as there were a few, who enjoyed the romp and play on the beautiful lawn
in preference to the hot stuffy room.
Old Sol appeared during the course of the afternoon and then many of them went to the outside, where they enjoyed games of hiding-and-go-seek. In order to make the affair seem more like a picnic, the teachers served the elaborate refreshments on the lawn. They were all very willing to eat, when the time came and one little girl was very willing to enjoy the anticipated sweets long before the time came, when she went up to one of the teachers and said, "let's eat."

After they all had completely satisfied their hunger, and they had no trouble in doing that because there was enough to feed an ordinary regiment. They all went into the club house where they held a short exercise, everybody taking part. This little portion of the program was not arranged beforehand and for this reason it was probably the most enjoyable. The girls spoke their pieces and sang their songs which they had learned at home, in the school room,

and at Sunday school with much precision and accuracy and showed that in many of the young girls might be found a lurking talent which might gain for her fame and renown. They all sang in unison many of the quaint old hymns and the battle hymn of the republic.

The most remarkable feature of the affair was the appearance of the young girls. When you imagine that every girl there made the dress,
which she wore, then you might form
a mental vision of how they would look. But in all probability your vision would be incorrect for the frock of the young misses in most instances looked as if it had been made by the most fashionable Parisian dress maker. It seems remarkable that the little tots in many instances could work such wonders with the needle and thread. They have worked all winter on their clothes and all that they have made
have been given to them.

Too much praise cannot be given to the women who have promoted this and by their earnest efforts and work have made the industrial school a success. They have spent much time and also in many instances money
for the betterment of the little children, who knew not the care of a mother in many cases and the results have been marvelous. The girls are clean, lady-like, industrious and have required higher ideas to strive for since their connection with the industrial school. The citizens have liberally supported the movement whenever the women ask for any money which they seldom did.
The funds of the charity ball which was held recently was donated to the good of the school and they look forward to even a more prosperous and successful year next season.

The last gathering of the school
for the summer will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Salvation Army church. The children will render a program and the public is cordially invited to come and see the work which the school has accomplished.

HAVE PASSION FOR EDITOR-PREACHERS

F. Wilson Kaler Takes Place Formerly Occupied by Charley Vail,
of the Republican.

NOW FILLING TWO PULPITS.

Elder F. Wilson Kaler, of the Andersonville Four County Herald, has accepted a call from Billingsville
Christian church for half time preaching. This, with his half time engagement at Lafayette, takes up his whole time. The Lafayette charge was recently given up by Charles Vail, formerly of the Rushville Daily Republican. It seems that the Christian congregation there has a passion for editor preachers.

HARMON MAY CONTINUE

In Charge of the C. H. & D. Railroad For Several Months.

The opinion is expressed that Governor Judson Harmon will be at the head of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad for several months
yet. This view is shared by many of the parties in the litigation standing in the federal court concerning claims against the road. The hearing of testimony in regard to these claims, which amount to several million dollars, has been resumed before Commissioner F. O. Loveland, of Ohio.

Rushville is going to boom.

LAST LONG PULL FOR CHAUTAUQUA

Will be Made Tomorrow When Supt.
Shaw Will Come For the "Round-Up."

THIRTY MORE ARE NEEDED

To Add to the Fifty Stockholders
Already Secured—the Plan
is Carefully Explained.

James H. Shaw, the chautauqua promoter, writes the following letter from Bloomington, Illinois, which is a last call for assistance toward organizing a chautauqua. Supt. Shaw will be here tomorrow and together with W. O. Headlee will make a canvas of the city in an endeavor to secure thirty more stockholders.

The letter from Supt. Shaw follows:

I thought perhaps some explanation would clear up matters regarding the Rushville Chautauque and so submit a few points.

Is the Rush County Chautauque
worth having? I have made a business of organizing and conducting chautauquas for eight years and each year have conducted anywhere from four to ten. I have charge this year of seven besides Rushville. I organized and have been in charge
for six years of the one at Richmond, Ind., whose success is familiar to most people in Rushville. By reason of making a business of managing chautauquas I have learned some business principles that govern their success and I wish to make clear two of them. One is, that the whole community must take an active part in its management. These principles would be true of any other genuinely public enterprise. I accomplish this in a simple way. In a town of the population of Rushville I ask for eighty citizens to join the organization as stock holders. That number includes most of the business and professional men of the community.
Anyone readily understands that eighty of the leading men of the city make a very strong organization
no matter for what. Secondly I ask that the share of stock be ten season tickets at $1.50 each which amounts to $1200. If I was promised $1200 in the bank without the eight hundred tickets, I would refuse the proposition because we not only need the money but we want the people. I therefore ask these eighty men to get eight hundred people to go to the chautauqua by reason of each holding a season ticket.

Eight hundred people going to the chautauqua is more certain to draw eight hundred other people than anything else we can do. We spend the twelve hundred dollars made by the eight hundred tickets on the program and we need people to pay the admission money so as to cover the expense of the auditorium tent, the employees, and the advertising. The only question we have up now is whether there are eighty public spirited citizens in Rushville and vicinity who think the chautauqua is worth enough for each one to take ten tickets, use part of them and re-sell the others. From my experience elsewhere I can certainly promise that each one can resell what he does not need in his own family. We now have about fifty stockholders.
Can we get the other thirty and have a strong chautauqua? I wish some organization like the church societies and the beneficial orders and the women's club would subscribe as organizations for some shares of these tickets and place the tickets with individual members. If all will join hands the task will be easy for all
and the outcome very successful.
Otherwise the task is hard for a few
and the outcome uncertain."

EDDIE FOY

"Good-Bye Molly Brown"

Sung by

MAUDE RAYMOND

with

EDDIE FOY

in Sam S. and Lee Shubert's production of

"Mr. Hamlet of Broadway"

is our musical offering this week by special permission of the Messrs. Shubert and THE TREBUHS PUBLISHING COMPANY.

MAUDE RAYMOND

We have made arrangement with THE TREBUHS PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York, who are the publishers of all music of the Sam S. and Lee Shubert Musical Attractions, by which we will publish one of the biggest song successes from EDDIE FOY'S new play, "Mr. Hamlet of Broadway." It is sung by Maude Raymond who made "Bill Simmons" famous, and is entitled, "Good-bye, Molly Brown." This song and "The Dusky Salome" are Miss Raymond's two big hits in the production. Edw. Madden and Ben. Jerome wrote the lyrics and music of all the songs in "Mr. Hamlet of Broadway," among which are "Under the Honeymoon" and "The Hornpipe Rag." The piece has had a long run at the Casino Theatre, New York, and is now touring the country.

Edward Laska, the manager of the Trebuh Publishing Company, states: "We have never before given the rights to a newspaper to publish a positive song hit of a production. Publishers usually give them an inferior number or a very old one; but we are going to experiment with this song and see if it really detracts from the regular sale. Messrs. Shubert, who own the rights of all our publications, were very reluctant in giving this permission, so you can assure your readers that in "GOOD-BYE, MOLLY BROWN," they are positively getting a twenty-five cent, up-to-date musical comedy song hit." Complete words and music will be published in our columns this week.

Mr. Earl Robertson

Will Sing

"Good Bye Molly Brown" at the Palace Theatre Saturday night

BELIEVE THEY HAVE A CASE

Inspectors Satisfied With Evidence Against Black Hand.

WILL PUSH THE PROSECUTION

Relying on the Documentary Evidence Secured in Their Search of Sam Lima's Home, Postoffice Inspectors Believe They Can Prove the Existence of an Elaborate Organization in the Central West For the Purpose of Extortion Among the Sicilians.

Cincinnati, June 11.—Having rounded up and arrested nine out of the eleven ringleaders of the Ohio division of the Society of the Banana, commonly known as the "Black Hand," Inspector Oldfield and his half-dozen associates, working under the instructions of Chief Postoffice Inspector Holmes of Cincinnati are now busily engaged at Columbus, O., in going over the evidence and preparing for the preliminary hearing of the prisoners the first part of next week at Toledo and Cleveland.

The government will rely on the documentary evidence secured in the two mail pouches of letters found in the house of Sam Lima when he was arrested at Marion, O., and letters found in possession of other prisoners, to prove conclusively an elaborate organization existing in the central west for the purpose of extortion among the Sicilians. The specific case which the government will rely upon for conviction is the one wherein the alleged conspirators and blood-money getters attempted extortion upon John Amicon, the wealthy fruit dealer of Columbus, O.

The government officers are disappointed in the maximum fine of $500 and only eighteen months in prison on the charge of using the mails to commit fraud and also on the charge of conspiracy for extortion, which will be brought against the prisoners under the United States statutes.

SAFELY LANDED

Passengers of the Stranded Antonio Lopez Suffered No Hurt.

New York, June 11.—Without a mishap the 526 passengers of the Spanish liner Antonio Lopez, which went ashore in the fog off Fire Island on one of the most dreaded stretches of the North Atlantic coast, reached New York last night. The cabin passengers, 192 in number, were allowed to go ashore at once, while those in the steerage were placed in care of the immigration authorities at Ellis Island.

The Lopez is in a bad position, lying broadside to the sea. Several unsuccessful efforts were made by the wrecking tugs to drag her from the sand. While the ship appears to be in no immediate danger, the wreckers are lying alongside prepared to take off the members of the crew in case a change in the wind should threaten their safety.

A REMARKABLE DEMONSTRATION

Confederate Veterans Do Honor to Gen. Grant's Son.

BATTLE BANNERS AT HIS FEET

To the Son of the Man Who Received the South's Surrender Was Reserved the Most Notable Tribute Ever Given a Northerner in Dixie.—Grizzled Veterans of the Confederacy Mingled Their Tears With Those of General Grant as They Laid at His Feet Their Battle-Torn Banners.

Memphis, Tenn., June 11.—A frenzied demonstration of welcome by the men in gray for the son of the man who defeated them marked the final scene of the nineteenth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans. It took place during the parade. In the reviewing stand stood Gen. Frederick Dent Grant of the United States army. A cavalry division approached, and its commanding officer, old and grizzled, peered steadily at General Grant a moment. Then he turned in his saddle and yelled, "Come on, you kids, here's General Grant come to life again in his son." With one of the old-time rebel yells, the division charged upon the stand and jostled one another for an opportunity to shake the hand of the son of their old-time enemy. From that moment every gray-clad veteran who could reach the stand rushed up to shake hands with General Grant. The stocky army officer's cold gray eyes filled with tears and his shoulders shook with emotion as he murmured, "God bless you all, boys! God bless you!"

Battle-torn banners were grouped at his feet and waved over his head in salute. More than one veteran was in tears as they saw the famous federal chieftain's son so touched by this reception. It is doubtful if any other northern man, even a president, ever received such an ovation.

COURT WOULDN'T HURRY

Motion For Advancement of Injunction Case Was Denied.

Evansville, Ind., June 11.—Striking carmen of the Evansville & Southern Indiana traction company were disappointed when Judge Debruler in circuit court refused their request for advancement of the hearing of the temporary injunction now pending against the strikers.

Attorney Thomas W. Lindsay presented the carmen's answer in sixteen pages, containing a denial to all the charges in the company's petition. The noteworthy features of the reply are that the company refused to arbitrate and to treat with the union carmen's committees because it wanted to force a strike, and that the company is now employing on its cars violators of the law who have been fined in city court for carrying concealed weapons.

DARING THEFT OF MAIL POUCH

Registered Packages Containing Thousands Looted.

PURLOINED FROM CAR DOOR

While an Illinois Central Train Was Standing at Champaign a Bold Thief Slipped an Unguarded Registered Mail Pouch Out of the Mail Car and Succeeded in Getting Away With It.—When Found the Most of Its Contents Had Been Removed.

Champaign, Ill., June 11.—A daring robber snatched a registered mail pouch supposed to contain many thousands of dollars from the car of Illinois Central train No. 25 at this place. The train was receiving an air brake test, when the man, seeing the pouch billed from Chicago to St. Louis lying in an open door on the left side of the mail car grabbed it and ran undetected to a dark place about two blocks away. Here he rifled the pouch and took twenty out of the thirty-seven pieces of registered mail.

Charles Sanders, mail clerk, who was in charge of the car, discovered his loss between Champaign and Tolo, and at the latter place boarded a freight train and returned to Champaign. The officers and central detectives at once began a search for the robber and the pouch, and the latter was found with seventeen pieces of the mail still untouched.

This is the third robbery of the kind in the last few weeks, the others having been committed at Mattoon and Effingham.

THE "UNWRITTEN LAW"

Is It to Be Invoked in an Indiana Murder Trial?

Indianapolis, June 11.—What does the ordinary man think of the "unwritten law," the "higher law," as it is sometimes called, that sometimes is taken to "justify" a husband in killing the man who invades the home and betrays the wife?

This, in substance, is the question that is being put by the state's attorney to the men who are being tested as to their fitness as jurors in the Elmer S. Ginn murder trial, now before the criminal court.

The state desires to know if the "unwritten law" is fixed in the mind of the prospective juror in such a way as to prejudice the talesman against William Walker, the man who was killed by Ginn. In the course of questioning each man in the jury box, the state presented the issue of the "higher law" behind which homicides frequently take defensive refuge.

Judge Franklin McCray, counsel for Ginn, objected. The court intimated that he would be inclined to sustain the objection of the defense to this special line of questioning by the state. According to the evidence given by Mrs. Ginn, wife of the man who killed William Walker, the murder was in the class of aggravated cases of so-called "justifiable homicide." Walker, says the woman, was in her company when Ginn, the angered husband, fired the fatal shot. The woman admits that she was in Walker's arms, and that she was compromised in the sight of her husband at the time the killing was done.

In view of the peculiar circumstances surrounding the tragedy, the defense desires to leave the way open to a defense based on the "unwritten" law. This was brought out by the state's series of questions, and was shown in Judge McCray's objection against going into the common prejudice against the invader of a home who is caught and killed by the injured husband.

MY NEIGHBOR'S HENS.

My neighbor's hens delight to come
And make a morning call;
In fact their chosen roosting place
Is on my garden wall.
And every time my back is turned
They come with skip and bound
And do the buck and wing upon
My newly planted ground.

They like to wander in my paths,
And while the hours away;
They compliment my gardening
At sunrise every day.
You see their land it is so plain,
And my so superfine,
That they prefer to leave their own
And roam around on mine.

My neighbors hens I'd sorely miss
If they should move away;
You see they undertake to change
My scenery every day.
And then, if they should fail to come,
I'd grow so good and bye
This earth would be no place for me
I'd surely have to die.

Public Conscience Must Be Kept Aroused Against Grafters.

By A. LEO WEIL, President of the Voters' League of Pittsburg.

WHEN you convict a grafter you CONVICT THE PUBLIC ALSO, for, given a publicin which there is a high moral standard, you will find in that community no general system of bribery and corruption.

CRIMINAL COMPLACENCE IS ONE OF THE BASIC ELEMENTS OF MUNICIPAL VICE, AND WHERE THAT ATTITUDE DOES NOT EXIST VICE IS BOUND TO BE SPORADIC.

The only way of keeping men good in any walk of life is by the FINGER OF PUBLIC OPINION. If the accusing finger of public opinion is kept pointed at the men known to be guilty of wrongdoing as member of council or the like, no other force need be applied.

THE CONCENTRATED GAZE OF THE PUBLIC IS MORE POWERFUL THAN ALL THE LAW COURTS OF THE WORLD.

Herein lies the difficulty of every community seeking for better things. The question of civic betterment can be resolved into the simple proposition of KEEPING A PUBLIC CONSCIENCE AROUSED after the first spasm of horror occasioned by graft exposures. This is a difficult thing to do. The public settles down after the initial upheaval to old selfish pursuits and FORGETS OR PASSES WITH A SHRUG FURTHER DISCLOSURES IN RELATION TO BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION. It has come to be an OLD STORY with them, and the lesson of arrests, convictions and indictments is wasted.

IT IS THIS CRIMINAL COMPLACENCY ON THE PART OF THE PUBLIC WHICH IN EVERY COMMUNITY MAKES THE PUBLIC ACCESSORIES TO CORRUPTION.

MAUDE ADAMS AS JOAN OF ARC.

Details of Her Play Planned For Harvard Stadium.

AN AMAZING BATTLE SCENE.

With Lead Soldiers and Model of the Stadium Actress Works Out Evolutions of the Conflict—Thirteen Hundred Persons to Participate.

Ten thousand persons are expected to witness Maude Adams' first appearance as Joan of Arc in the Harvard stadium at Cambridge, Mass., on the evening of June 22. The "bowl" of the stadium will be used for seating purposes, and all that portion of the field and a large section of the gridiron that face the "bowl" will be used for the stage. The actors will tread upon turf. A special scenic setting adaptable to the stadium is being built. In the matter of costumes, of which there are more than 1,300, Miss Adams has the co-operation of John Alexander, the artist.

One thousand supernumeraries will be employed by Miss Adams. These will be in charge of fifty super captains, and to dress them there will be a small host of armorers, costume masters, wardrobe masters, etc. Every essential down to a pin necessary for the costuming of this horde will be transported to the stadium. In addition Miss Adams' master electrician will install a complete electrical plant in the stadium sufficient to furnish every requisite of lighting known to the modern theater, only on a scale vastly larger than any hitherto contemplated in America.

The qualities of simplicity and grandeur that mark the Passion play at Oberammergau will also characterize the performance of "Joan of Arc" by Miss Adams and her company. An English version of Schiller's "Jungfrau von Orleans" will be used. The incidental music will be taken in part from Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony.

To marshal the large force of auxiliaries and to direct the performance there will be employed ten stage managers and a chief manager, and over all these a stage director. The auxiliaries have been separated in groups sufficiently small for individual coaching and drilling, yet large enough to emphasize their relation to the whole. The actors will get their entrance cues by means of signals on varicolored incandescent lamps, and the movements of the mass of supernumeraries will be governed in the same way.

Every afternoon in the library of her New York house Miss Maude Adams resolves herself into a board of strategy, and with a model of the Harvard stadium before her she devotes hours to planning the battle scene in "Joan of Arc" as she will produce the play on June 22. She was busy there the other day with companies and battalions of lead soldiers, cavalry and infantry, moving them about, arranging the entrances and the exits and the various and intricate evolutions that will be followed exactly in the performance. Both the model and the soldiers were made exactly to scale, and the practiced eyes of "General" Adams are able to see just how it will appear when the Harvard stadium, scene of great football battles that are very real, is turned into a mock theater of war as in the days of Joan of Arc.

After Miss Adams closes her season at the Empire theater in New York she will go to Boston with her entire forces—company, stage managers and supernumeraries—for actual rehearsals on the grassy stage of the stadium. Thirteen hundred persons will participate. Three complete rehearsals devoted to actual tactical cavalry maneuvers will be held under the direction of Captain Shelburne of Battery A, Massachusetts volunteer militia, composed of Harvard graduates, who have volunteered for the performance.

The elaborate nature of the production is shown by the fact that the battle scene alone will last nearly half an hour. To give complete verisimilitude its martial tableaux will be copied from paintings by Boutet de Monvel. The scene at the climax will be based on Meissonier's canvas "1807," but with Joan instead of Napoleon mounted upon a white horse amid charging cavalry. The brow of the hill will be on the spectators' left, and Miss Adams as Joan will overlook the conflicting armies on the plain below.

For the perfection of this highly elaborate scene a model of the stadium's stage with its complete settings has been made by John W. Alexander.

The single performance of "Joan of Arc" will be given for the benefit of the Germanic museum and under the auspices of the German department of the university. The use of the stadium was granted some months ago to Miss Adams by the president and fellows of Harvard college.

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, June 11.—Another important decision bearing on the Moore remonstrance law has been rendered. The fact that a power of attorney to sign the names of voters to "any and all" remonstrances against applications for saloon licenses and to sign such names to blanket "remonstrances" was given more than two years before, and had been once executed by signing and filing a remonstrance which had kept all saloons out of the township for two years, did not affect its validity as authority for the attorney to sign and file a second "blanket" remonstrance for another two years. That is the effect of a decision of the supreme court affirming the case of George P. McLanahan vs. Ed Breeding and others. The appellees are voters of Lagro township, of Wabash county. They executed a power of attorney under which a "blanket" remonstrance was filed just before the January session of the county commissioners in 1906, and their attorney filed another remonstrance in January, 1908, without a renewal of his power of attorney. McLanahan applied for a saloon license a month later, and appealed from the refusal to grant one. The supreme court upholds the action of the commissioners in refusing the license on the ground of the remonstrance thus filed.

The recent balloon race demonstrated one thing, and that is that there are still people in the wilds who are afraid of balloons and who hold them in terror. Dr. Goethe Link of Indianapolis, winner of the handicap race, was shot as he was sailing over a small mountain town on the line between Kentucky and Tennessee. The bullet barely grazed him. If it had struck the gas bag he would have been compelled to descend. He says that the mountaineers had never seen or heard of a balloon and that they shot to protect themselves. In the mountains of southern Tennessee Forbes and Harmon were fired on and the bullet hit their basket. The hazard from the mountaineers was not unexpected, or unusual, according to the stories told by the veteran aeronauts, but the experience was dreaded by all of them.

Within the next two or three years it is thought that there will be aeroclubs in many of the smaller western cities. Many inquiries have been received here of the promoters of the national races from enthusiasts in western cities who want to organize clubs and buy a balloon or so for experiment and for pleasure. Members of the national organization say that the craze for the sport is growing and that it is only a question of a short time until balloon racing becomes a fact.

Governor Marshall was at Bloomington last night, where he attended a dinner and meeting of the Democratic editors of the state. He was one of the chief speakers for the evening. From Bloomington the governor today went to Hammond to deliver the high school commencement address this evening. The Governor and Mrs. Marshall will go to Terre Haute tomorrow evening to remain until after the commencement exercises at St. Mary-of-the-Woods next Tuesday.

DEMOCRATIC EDITORS

Are Holding Their Annual Business Session Today.

Bloomington, Ind., June 11.—The summer session of the Indiana Democratic Editorial association is in session here with 100 editors from various parts of the state in attendance. When the visiting scribes arrived they were met at the trains by representatives of the local newspapers and the university and members of the University Press club. The meeting began with a business meeting in the court house. Attorney Ira C. Batman, in behalf of the city, gave a welcome address which was responded to by S. Paul Pointer of Sullivan. Governor Marshall was the principal speaker at the editorial banquet last night. A business session of the editors was held today.

Although politics was not included in the baggage of the Democratic editors, it crept in anyway before the festivities had fairly started. Four former candidates for the United States senate—John W. Kern, John Lamb, G. V. Menzies and Edwin G. Hoffman—were in the list of arrivals.

Receivership Follows Disaster.

New Orleans, La., June 11.—The Pontchartrain Transportation company of New Orleans, owner of the steamer Margaret that carried the excursionists eleven of whom lost their lives in the wharf disaster at Mandeville La., Sunday, has been placed in the hands of a receiver, on petition of creditors. It is declared that there is no connection whatever between the Mandeville tragedy and the receivership proceedings.

RED MEN PURCHASE THE SOCIAL CLUB

Negotiations Closed Today Whereby Building Goes to Indians.

PURCHASE PRICE HAS $4250

A committee from the Red Men lodge today closed a deal whereby they purchased the Social Club building for $4250. Negotiations have been underway for several weeks for the purchase of the building. The committee composed of the following men, Ed. Sherman, George C. Wyatt, George Havens, Ben McFarlan, and Will McBride had complete charge of the negotiations and the sanction of the lodge will not be necessary. Changes will probably be made in the building but no definite plans have as yet been made.

BY THE WAYSIDE

Last week, a neat but foxy young pullet, wearing high heeled slippers, with a neat turned ankle incased in fancy black punctured socks, dropped into town and started down the street soliciting for a charitable institution, says Rock Rapids Reporter. Every rooster in town bit and after lining her pockets she joined her pal, a sleek, well fed guy, and hit the next train out of town. The next week a woman with a game leg, no hip pads and no punctured socks, dropped into town and told her story and offered to sell a broom header for 10c, and she was turned down by nearly every rooster who coughed up 50 cents for the first pullet. This is modern charity.

HOW'D YOU LIKE TO BE AN ICE MAN

He Has Trouble of His Own to Deal With on Warm Summer Days.

TELEPHONE GIRL IS NOT IN IT

Dispenser of Blocks of Frozen Coldness Gets Good Line on Family History

The iceman! He dwelleth amongst us again. Talk about the telephone girl being wise to things. Why, she can't start with the iceman. He is the one fellow that gets "inside information" for he has access to the inside of so many veiled places. Take the refrigerator for instance. If the iceman is any judge of human nature at all, he can get a line on the general characteristics of the people of the household—and especially the lady of the house—by taking a peep at the layouts found and not found in the ice chest, and without ever even so much as getting a glimpse at the folks.

Ordinarily he takes things cool. Women usually get very friendly and even confidential with his nibs of the ice hooks. They even thaw out more than they do for the sewing girl who comes to their home and has to listen to choice bits of personal affairs and gossip with every stitch. A woman soon learns that she can only fool the iceman just so long, telling him the bottles "she will take out of his way" contain catsup. After a while she becomes calloused to that condition and even invites the perspiring man to "wait until she opens a bottle—for we never in the world will drink all of this stuff." Soon he becomes to expect those sort of things and must learn to refuse—but in a nice way of course. One iceman has said that since county option began to tighten it's grasp around a part of a "certain public" he finds that three times the amount of bottled goods take a place in the refrigerator.

Beside shearing the tail end of domestic rows, the dispenser of blocks of frozen coldness has the opportunity of getting a good "line" on the family from the viewpoint of the Tarrytown poet, who had said that a family can best be judged by the washing they hang out in the back yard on Monday morning. He can also see the housekeeper who keeps up the show with potted plants and boxwood trees on the front veranda, and debris and old junk scattered about the back porch. And what about the left-overs kept from day to day in the "box of mystery?" Those dishes that are pushed behind the castor on the table for five or six days and then juggled about in the refrigerator until they take on a coat of green, and look like Rochefort cheese.

The close follower and disciple of a Mrs. Rorer would have had the dish made into a score of delicacies before the food was cold two days. By a glance at such things a housewife's intelligence can easily be measured. Some of them—ten to twenty years behind the times—are still using the embalming process on their left-overs and unpalatable cuisine efforts.

Seriously, did you ever stop to think what the life of an iceman must be. On the very warmest days he must labor the most. Everybody wants ice then, and lots of it. No wonder, he has "temperment." And with every woman he is at least three hours late. What detained him? She was so afraid some things would spoil. Then he must stop and chat with her. She would be disappointed if he didn't quarrel a little with her. And the gruffer he is the better she can work the remainder of the day. A few cruel words from the iceman and a good wife is stirred to action with teeth clinched and nerves set to the determination notch. But for a' that, he is a luxury at any cost. Little matter if he does conduct himself with the air of a czar and to just reach into your ice book, whose green coupons seem to melt like the pounds of ice that they stand for, under a hot noonday sun, and tear out a "bunch" regardless of the amount he is taking.

Jever notice how they take out coupons? With their dripping hooks hanging on their shoulder, like a defiant boy seeking a fight with a chip on his shoulder, they make a charge on the green slips as if they were playing "grab-bag." It's a great occupation, of that there is no doubt; a great study is the piece of humanity that springs from the ice plant where the ammonia breezes blow.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

WITH THE REDSKINS.

(Greenfield Republican.) Jesse W. Smith, who went from this county to teach among the Indians some time ago, is located at Cut Meat, S. D.

In a letter to a friend in this city Mr. Smith gives some light into his duties as an Indian teacher. To begin with, he says, he can scarcely get time enough to himself to write a letter, as the teacher is expected by the Indians to help them to everything they do. He is pleased with the country and his duties. The Indians are decidedly friendly and particularly to the teacher. They tell him of their family affairs and request him to name their papooses.

An Indian teacher is appointed by the civil service commission, after passing an examination.

A REAL MYSTERY

(Columbus Republican.)

There is a genuine mystery lurking around the office of Beck & Emig and said mystery seems to be in the telephone. Nearly a dozen times in the past two days Roy W. Emig has found the receiver of the hook and hanging the full length of the cord. At first he thought some one had allowed the receiver to hang down while waiting for the telephone to be answered and then forgot to hang it up. He replaced it on the hook so many times that he decided to investigate. Today Mr. Emig noticed that the receiver was on the hook and went away. He locked the office and no one entered during his absence. When he returned the receiver was hanging down again. It fits firmly on the hook and how it happens to be down several times a day when no one takes it down is something Mr. Emig cannot fathom.

Ribiere paid little attention to him, but opened a notebook and removed a fountain pen from his pocket. Mariano shrugged his shoulders and went on setting the table, then stopped and looked up.

"Each time we lose the honor to have it known," he went on. "In Naples, everywhere, are reach American peoples that would give large pourboire to mingle with his highness."

The secretary lifted a warning finger.

"Have I not said it is to be incognito, and yet you prate of highness in the first breath. Would you wish he shall withdraw his patronage?" He looked stonily at the man opposite him. "See that you do not offend again." He consulted his watch.

"He comes in his machine from Naples. As on former visits, all is to be as before. No one must guess. To all he must be Herr Grollerhagen."

"Herr Grollerhagen?" ejaculated Mariano quickly and with astonishment in his round features. "Herr Grollerhagen?"

"He wishes to be known as a German," went on M. Ribiere. "It pleases him to be so thought."

Mariano stood lost in contemplative astonishment.

"What a man," he sighed—"of caprice, eccentric, so wonderful! Ha!"

The secretary smiled in a superior manner.

"You have said it. Last night he talked by chance to a strange North American in the hotel at Napoli. Apparently he is much interested. Today he has that stranger for companion in his automobile. I remonstrate. What use? He laugh for one-half the hour."

Again the maitre d'hotel remained lost in astonishment. For some moments he stood with the napkin in his hands gazing out over the wonderful bay that lay before the hotel.

"He is not like those cousin of his in Petersburg and Moscow," he said at last, with a touch of awe in his tones. "And yet, though monseigneur is so good and generous, will not the anarchist strike against the name of even royalty himself? You have not that fear?"

The secretary shivered in the soft warm air and seized his companion by the wrist.

"I have!" he said quickly. "He has not. I take what precautions I can secretly from him. But of what use? You have few patrons?"

A smile crossed Mariano's face, and he shrugged his shoulders expressively.

"It is yet so early in the season. 'Those poor musician'—he pointed off beyond the gates—"they wait always at every gate to play when they shall see any one coming, but of late they are disappointed. Within, with us in the hotel, are but seer people, all of one party!"

An expression of relief crossed the Frenchman's face, and he opened his notebook quickly.

"Good!" he murmured. "Who are they?"

Mariano scratched his head with one rummative finger and bent his brows upon the table in thought.

"There is milor, an English excellency—the Earl of Hawcastle; there is also his son, the excellency honorable Almerie St. Aubyn; there is Miladi Creeche, an English miladi, who is sister-in-law to Milor Hawcastle."

Quickly Ribiere jotted down the names in his book and then looked up.

"Three English," he said. "Good so far. Those English are safe."

Mariano went on:

"There is an American signorina, Mees Granger-Seempson. Miladi Creeche travel with her to be chaperon." Here he became enthusiastic as the memory of sundry pieces of gold and silver awakened his keen thoughts. "She is young, generous; she give money to every one; she is multa bella, so pretty, weeth charm!"

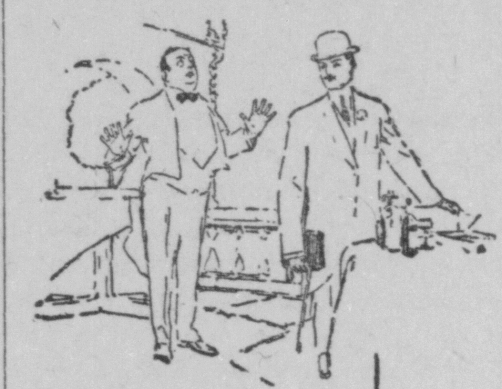

"You mean this Lady Creeche?" interrupted the Frenchman, with a puzzled frown.

"No, no, no!" cried Mariano in horrified amazement. "Miladi Creeche is old lady and does not hear so well; quite deaf; no pourboires; nothing. I speak of the young American lady, Mees Granger-Seempson, who the English honorable son of Milor Hawcastle wishes to espouse, I think."

Ribiere wrote rapidly in his notebook and without looking up said:

"Who else is there?"

"There is the brother of Mees Granger-Seempson, a young gentleman from also North America. He make the eyes all the day at another lady, who is of the party, a French lady, Comtesse de Champigny. Ha, eet amuse me!" And he burst into a respectful titter.

Ribiere looked at him with grave astonishment and bent once more to his notebook, over which the pen flew with a practiced hand.

"Why?" he said shortly.

Mariano smothered his mirth with the napkin he carried and with an effort controlled himself.

"Becoss," he answered—"becoss I have thought that madame the comtesse is so good a friend of the ol' English Milor Hawcastle. A maitre d'hotel see many things, eh, and I think Milor Hawcastle and madame have known each other from long perhaps. This dejeuner is for them; also I

MI-O-NA

Relieves Stomach Misery Almost Immediately.

If the food you ate at your last meal did not digest, but laid for a long time like lead on your stomach, then you have indigestion and quick action should be taken.

Of course there are many other symptoms of indigestion, such as belching up of sour food, heartburn, dizziness, shortness of breath and foul breath, and if you have any of them, your stomach is out of order and should be corrected.

Mi-o-na tablets have cured thousands of cases of indigestion and stomach trouble. If you have any stomach distress, Mi-o-na will relieve you instantly.

But Mi-o-na unlike most so-called dyspepsia remedies, does more than relieve; it permanently cures dyspepsia or any stomach trouble by putting energy and strength into the walls of the stomach, where the gastric juices are produced.

A large box of Mi-o-na tablets costs but 50 cents at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s, and are guaranteed to cure or money back. When others fail, Mi-o-na cures. It is a producer of flesh when the body is thin; it cleanses the stomach and bowels; purifies the blood and makes rich red blood.

CHAPTER IV. STRANGE NEWS.

THE Earl of Hawcastle was nearly at the end of his financial rope. And yet to look at him as he entered upon the terrace from the lemon grove no one would have thought that a care in the world possessed him.

Added to the natural calm demeanor of the Englishman of station was a certain self-possession gained by years of standing on the brink of events, and, while this brilliant morning his cares had hung even a little more heavily upon him than was his desire, yet he gave no outward hint of any troubles that beset him.

He was a well-preserved man of fifty-six, with close cropped iron gray hair and a straight cut military mustache that hid certain cruel lines in his mouth and softened the severe lineaments. He carried himself with an erectness that bespoke pride in race, if not in deeds of his own. He was distinguished with that curious individuality that causes those in the street to nudge one another and ask in whispers who another may be, and he was unmistakably high bred.

True, his sense of honor that would balk at cheating in a card game or the larceny of a traveling bag was not sufficient to debar him from con-capable eye of an observer than a ream of self-description or admission.

She was of that type that causes the elderly dowager of any race to regard her with suspicion and to gather her maie entourage beneath the protecting wings. Mme. de Champigny, raising her hand with a little gesture of greeting, paused an instant as she stood at the top of the steps and cried softly:

"Me voici!"

The earl jumped to his feet and bowed, inquiring at the same time:

"My esteemed relative is still asleep?"

The countess swept forward to her chair, which Hawcastle pulled out for her, and murmured:

"I trust your beautiful son has found much better employment—as our hearts would wish him, eh?"

Hawcastle laughed shortly and mirthlessly.

"He has. He's off on a canter with the little American."

Whereat the demure countess clasped her daintily gloved hands together and cried softly:

"Brava!"

That they were old friends, these two, was to be seen at a glance. There was no inquiring as to each other's tastes and dislikes. It was evident that long association had ingrained an intimate knowledge of the other into the mind of each, and they met as good comrades without more than perfunctory courtesy. The earl went on as he reseated himself.

"I didn't mean Almerie, however, Helene, but my august sister-in-law." Without further comment he turned to the paper again and read. The amiable countess smiled at him enigmatically and broke a roll with the gesture of an empress.

"The amiable Lady Hermione Trevelyan Creech has dejeuner in her apartments. What do you find to read, mon cher?"

with a catch of her breath, and Mariano bowed again jerkily in her direction.

"It has not to say, madame," he replied. "That is all. And will milor and Mme. la Comtesse excuse me? And may I take the journal? There is one who should see it."

Hawcastle smiled slightly at his excitement and nodded.

"Very well, Mariano," he said, and Mariano, with another jerk that was supposed to include both of the illustrious ones, disappeared with a speediness that was alarming. For an instant there was silence, and then the countess, with a quick upward glance of her dark eyes, said tremblingly:

"I should like much to know his name."

The earl smiled and went on with his breakfast.

"You may be sure it isn't Ivanoff," he said, but the assurance did not seem to carry weight with madame, for she leaned her chin in her hand and looked off over the bay, and there was a troubled look in her eyes.

AN OLD-TIME PRESCRIPTION

In a modern product. From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair and making it grow. In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready to use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. Such a preparation is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, which is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or which is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

HABIT

YOU HAVE probably not yet formed enough "habits." It is likely that you would find the "ad-answering habit" a dividend paying one—and one that would never lure you far away from the best thrift-creed ever devised.

A habit is usually formed through yielding to natural inclination. The ad-answering habit will have to be cultivated—perhaps against present inclination, and through an effort of will.

You are not in the habit of saying "impossible" are you?

This morning he was clad in an immaculate suit of lightly striped white flannel, with carefully pipelayed shoes, and the pale rose necktie that he wore was a living monument to the fact that the well-groomed Englishman knows no peer on earth, while the jaunty exactness of his snowy pama hat was a revelation in proper headgear.

As he entered the terrace his alert glance swept it from end to end, and he noted that there was no one about. He moved at once to the table that Mariano had set for him, and at the instant he sat down Michele ran down the steps of the hotel with a folded newspaper in his hand which he presented to milord with a low bow. Mariano entered bearing a coffee tray, and the earl greeted him with a cheerful good morning which Mariano acknowledged as one would a favor from a king.

"Milor is serve," he announced with soft accents and took the hat and light walking stick, bestowing them with reverential care upon a side table. As the earl unfolded Il Mattino he glanced up.

"No English papers?" he said.

"Milor, the mail is late," answered Michele and bowed himself up the stairs.

"Also Mme. de Champigny," growled the earl as he glanced down the unfamiliar pages.

As he spoke the countess, clad in the very latest Parisian creation, swept down the steps and approached the table. She looked well, and she knew it.

Apparently about thirty-two, she would probably have confessed to five years more under pressure, but her dark beauty was well set off by the light colors she affected, and the tilt of her parasol revealed more to the Hawcastle threw the paper down upon the cloth with an exclamation.

"I'm such a duffer at Italian," he said, "but apparently the people along the coast are having a scare over an escaped convict, a Russian."

The hovering Mariano, who was flitting about the table like a wounded sparrow, started slightly and hesitated with a silver cover in his hand, then stepped forward.

"If milor will pardon me"—The countess also started and put down her fork with a slight rattle.

"A Russian?" she ejaculated.

"Yes," grumbled the earl. "An escaped Russian bandit has been traced to Castellamare." He paused to insert the choicest bit of melon in his mouth, and Mariano's jaw dropped with the excitement.

"Castellamare—not twelve kilometers from here!" he whispered in awestruck tones, and the earl continued when he had masticated the fruit:

"And a confidential agent—secret service man, I dare say—has requested his arrest from the Italian authorities. But, to quote from our grandiose Il Mattino, 'the brigand tore himself from the hands of the carabinieri,' or something like that. I can't be sure, but it read to me."

Mariano broke in excitedly. He had picked up the paper and was devouring it with avidity.

"If milor permit, and madame"—he bowed like an automaton—"I shall translate."

"Quite right, Mariano," said the earl, and the maitre d'hotel went on avidly.

"The brigand tore himself," he read excitedly, "from the hand of the carabinieri, and without the doubts he conceal himself in some of these grotto near Sorrento, and searchment is being execute". The agent of the Russian embassy have inform' the bureau that this escape one is a mos' in-fray-mose robber and danger brigand."

"What name does the paper say he has?" interrupted Mme. de Champigny.

Lesson XI.—Second Quarter,
For June 13, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Heb. xi, 1-3, 17-29.
Memory Verses 24, 25—Golden Text, Heb. xi, 1—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

The word "faith" being used twenty-four times in this chapter, we may call it the great "faith" chapter, as Rev. I. is the great "throne" chapter, the word being used fourteen times, and I Kings, xiii, the "man of God" chapter, the phrase being used fifteen times. We sometimes thus obtain from a word or phrase the key to the portion we are reading or studying. The word "believe," used over ninety times in John's gospel, helps us to understand John xx, 31. In a recent lesson we had an Old Testament saying used three times in the New, and now we have another. "The just shall live by faith" is first found in Hab. ii, 4, and is quoted in Rom. i, 17; Gal. iii, 11; Heb. x, 38, and probably, as some think, each time with a different emphasis. When we remember how our Lord was refreshed by the great faith of two gentiles and how He repeatedly reproved His disciples for their lack of faith, we can see at least one way in which we can please Him or grieve Him. One has well said:

Faith is not what we see or feel, but is a simple trust in what the God of love hath said of Jesus as the just.

By faith we look at things not seen and are thus lifted above the things we see. The true believer walks by faith and not by sight. Believing Gen. i and Ps. xxxiii, 6, 7, we know how the worlds were made. Some want to understand in order to believe, but verse 3 says that we must believe in order to understand. The world says "Seeing is believing," but Jesus said that if we believe we shall see (John xi, 40). We must hold fast that the way to understand is to believe and that without faith it is impossible to please God (verses 3, 6). In

Hard to attend to household duties With a constantly aching back.

A woman should not have a bad back,

And she wouldn't if the kidneys were well.

Doan's Kidney Pills make well kidneys.

Here is a Rushville woman who endorses this claim:

Mrs. William Merrill, 332 West Fourth Street, Rushville, Ind., says: "For a long time my back was very weak and I had a constant, dull pain across my kidneys. I felt weary and languid and dreaded to do housework of any kind. Some time ago my husband obtained a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s drug store and since using them, I have improved in every way. I have a very high opinion of this remedy."

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

the first half of our chapter we have faith illustrated in seven men from the book of Genesis, five of whom were mentioned by name by the Lord Jesus. He thus indorsing their record. Dr. Saphir says that in the first three we have the sacrifice of faith, the walk of faith and the obedience of faith. The first is of necessity sacrifice, for unless we have the forgiveness of sins by the shedding of blood there can be no fellowship and no works of faith or labor of love. Abel could not offer a sacrifice of faith unless he had some word of God to guide him, for faith cometh by hearing the word of God (Rom. x, 17).

That word was spoken by word or deed, or perhaps both, when the transaction of Gen. iii, 21, occurred, and Adam must have instructed his children that there could be no access to God but by sacrifice. Cain brought the best he had, but there was no shedding of blood. He was disobedient and therefore not accepted. There is only one way to God, and all other ways are the way of Cain—that is, of the devil (Judg. ii, 1; John iii, 12). Being redeemed by the precious blood of Christ, it is our privilege to walk with God as Enoch did, or as it is written of Levi, "He walked with me in peace and equity and did turn many away from iniquity." We cannot walk with God as He would like us to unless we are agreed with Him about everything, but if we are simple, whole hearted believers He will dwell in us and walk in us, and we may have the consciousness of pleasing Him. The question with us should never be, Is there any harm in this? but rather, Will this please Him who has taken up His abode in me? As Enoch and Elijah were taken to glory without dying, so will all believers who shall be alive on the earth when Jesus comes. It may be our privilege, for the end of this age is surely upon us. If, like Noah, we believe things not seen as yet, our deeds will be a reproof to the world lying in the wicked one, and we will both preach and live righteousness (II Pet. ii, 5) as Noah did.

If we believe as Abraham did we will look for the same city for which he looked, and, rejoicing in that citizenship, we will live as strangers and pilgrims here. We will not consider ourselves or our circumstances, but be fully persuaded that what God has promised He is able to perform (Rom. iv, 21). Isaac, Jacob and Joseph all lived in the assurance of things to come (verse 20). Moses had such respect upon the recompense of the reward that the prospect of power and position in Egypt was nothing to him. The reproach of Christ was more attractive than the pleasures of sin for a season.

We would not have put Samson in there, nor Jephthah. O heart of man, take courage! Is there faith in thee? Even though thou dost blunder and seem to fail, thy faith is accounted for righteousness. And then, as though deeds were most important, he masses them—"subdued," "wrought," "obtained," "stopped the mouths of lions," "quenched," "escaped," "waxed valiant." The story is not ended. Saints, apostles, prophets, martyrs, seers, visionaries—the men of today at whom we laugh—are the men of faith. The vision creates a passion, the passion becomes a mission, and the life is lived till eventide.

I like that saying in verse 34, "Out of weakness were made strong," in connection with II Cor. xii, 9. Then think of all these with us waiting for Luke xiv, 14.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic for the Week
Beginning June 13, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The noble life of Frances Willard.—Prov. xxxi, 10; xvii, 25, 26, 29-31.

The temperance cause is making great progress today. State prohibition and local option have made great inroads upon the liquor traffic, and in the providence of God it seems doomed. Public sentiment is fast being aroused against this cursed traffic, and in this country the people may have what they want if they only want it bad enough to arouse themselves from their lethargy and demand it of those elected by them to make and execute laws for them. This sentiment is rapidly growing against intemperance and the law's relation to it, and more loudly every day the people are saying to the liquor traffic, "Go!" and when the voice of the people becomes loud enough it will go.

At such a time it is pleasant and profitable to recall the great pioneers of the movement against intemperance and especially those who did so much to educate public opinion that is now beginning to manifest itself. One of these leaders, the greatest at least of all the women who have labored for this cause, was Frances E. Willard, for years the president of the Woman's Christian Temperance union and acknowledged as the leader of the temperance forces of the world, so far as women were concerned.

Under the topic "A Heroic Woman" Amos R. Wells has the following to say concerning Miss Willard:

Frances Elizabeth Willard was born in Churchville, N. Y., Sept. 28, 1839. In her childhood the family removed first to Oberlin and then to a pioneer home near Janesville, Wis.

Her education was finished at the Northwestern Female college, Evanston, Ill., where she won a host of friends, displayed great intellectual power and became valedictorian of her class.

Taking up the teacher's vocation after highly successful work in many institutions, she became dean of the Northwestern Female college and professor of aesthetics in the Northwestern university.

Miss Willard was moved to take up temperance work by the woman's crusade, that "whirlwind of the Lord which in fifty days swept the liquor traffic out of 250 towns and villages." At great financial cost she became president, in 1874, of the Chicago Woman's Christian Temperance union. In 1879 she became president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union, until her death, Feb. 17, 1898, being the acknowledged leader of the temperance women of the United States and the world.

Among the outstanding events of her life are her pioneer work for temperance organization in the west, labors for prohibition constitutional amendments in many states, the editorship of the Union Signal, the writing of an autobiography and other books, heroic work for the Woman's temple, the National Temperance hospital and the Woman's Temperance Publishing association. The polyglot temperance petition addressed to the governments of the world and the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union were her plans. She spoke everywhere, being heard often on Christian Endeavor platforms, for she was a warm friend of our society. Rightly has she been called "the uncrowned queen of America."

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. iii, 18-25; Ruth ii, 1-12; Prov. xx, 1; xxii, 1; xxiii, 29-31; Luke ii, 40-55; x, 38-42; John xii, 1-9; I Pet. iii, 1-6.

Work of Foreign Societies.

The south sea islands have some interesting Christian Endeavor societies. There are thirty-four in the Marshall and Caroline islands, and one of them meets in a church built all of whale-bone and coral. In Samoa the Endeavorers issue a manual of their own in the Samoan language and have sold 5,000 copies of it. In the Loyalty islands there are 2,000 members, who gave $8,000 for missions last year. That average may well make some young Christians who do not live in the Loyalty islands feel ashamed.
